INITIATIVES TO ALLEVIATE LONELINESS

2019

Symposium Programme

Innovation: Initiatives to Alleviate Loneliness

Friends for Good is proud to present Innovation: Initiatives to Alleviate Loneliness, an exciting opportunity for academics, not-for-profits, governments and businesses to discover, discuss and contribute to initiatives tackling loneliness right now.

This symposium is a chance for you to be inspired, get connected and stay up-to-date with organisations that are addressing the needs of all people suffering from or affected by loneliness in our communities.

We welcome you to share your thoughts and experiences since the The Australian Loneliness Dialogue 2018, contribute your unique insight to the conversation and shape the future of loneliness initiatives across the country.

Sponsored by:

Friends for Good sees loneliness as a critical health issue in the Australian community; one of national importance.

This significant work has been taken up in response to the loneliness experienced by all of us, ourselves, our families and friends and people we have worked with.

As we know, for some people loneliness is temporary or transient and may be a signal that we need more human connections, but for others it is chronic, becoming a serious mental health issue.

Friends for Good has begun work to understand the prevalence of loneliness in Australia by conducting the Time We Talked online survey. We have a significant online presence through social media, a blog and website where we are having the conversation about loneliness in order to break down the stigma that surrounds it.

We have begun the development of volunteer-run services including FriendLine (the national support line), community lunches and a letter writing service.

We have created a focus on the issue of loneliness and collaborated with academics, service providers and leaders in the loneliness space by hosting The Australian Loneliness Dialogue, the first national conference on loneliness. Following the conference we delivered our recommendations to government and formed The Friendship Alliance to work together on the issues of social isolation and loneliness.

We are working to undertake community education and research as well as developing resources and building strong networks to improve outcomes for lonely people.

Open Mic

1.05pm – 1.25pm

A chance to share your thoughts and experiences on how to approach loneliness.

If you attended The Australian Loneliness Dialogue in November, what did you take away from that?

What has happened in your work or personal experience in relation to loneliness that you would like to share?

Time We Talked

1.25pm – 1.40pm

A summary of the Time We Talked campaign that surveyed 1,745 people about loneliness.

Research data analyst Edmond Low discusses the campaign, its findings and how the information gathered can be used in a practical sense including forming a basis for future research.

Community Organisation Presentations

1.40pm – 2.40pm

We hear from community organisations that have exciting initiatives operating right now to tackle loneliness.

Each organisation will give a brief summary of who they are, what they do and the level of contact they have with lonely people. They will also give their unique perspective on the challenges for tackling loneliness, what they have found to be successful and why. The organisations in attendance will be:

How Can Community Spaces Facilitate Connection?

3.20pm – 4.20pm

A facilitated panel discussion bringing loneliness in our community spaces into focus.

Community psychologist Dr Peter Streker, Melbourne-based architect Dr David Week and urban designer Marisa Berton will be tackling some of the issues surrounding social interaction in our community such as:

What spaces do we have that successfully help people connect?

What is the role of government in planning to help people reconnect?

What are great examples from overseas that we could use in Australia?

What is the psychological impact of living/working in environments that facilitate connection?

Dr David Week

Panellist

3.20pm – 4.20pm

David is an award-winning architect with 40 years experience in social enterprise and design for social impact.

He has advised on a wide variety of social development projects in Aboriginal Australia, the Pacific, Asia and Africa.

He currently consults to DFAT and the World Bank on international development projects, does research at the University of Melbourne, and holds a board role at Community Housing Limited, Australia's largest community housing organisation.

Dr Peter Streker

Panellist

3.20pm – 4.20pm

Peter is a community psychologist who has worked extensively in community building.

While coordinating the City of Port Phillip's Community Health and Wellbeing team, Peter and his team initiated a range of creative community building projects.

Peter is the Chair of the Australian Psychological Society's Community Psychology Committee and Director of Community Stars – a small business that works with Australian local communities to improve their health and wellbeing.

Marisa Berton

Panellist

3.20pm – 4.20pm

Marisa has over 40 years experience in architecture, urban design and the interface between neighbourhoods and infrastructure.

She has won awards in urban design and has a passion for creating spaces that allow people to socialise and interact.

Marisa has worked in her own building design business and also in community advisory positions. Having recently returned from a study tour of Europe, Marisa is keen to share the inclusive and affordable housing solutions that were discovered and the social benefits they offer.

Terence Jaensch

Panel Facilitator

Terence has worked as a creative professional across the arts, education, local government and community sectors over the past 19 years. He has also worked extensively as a workshop and strategic planning facilitator for a range of institutions and taught at a tertiary level.
